Texas, Cotton, and the Census

Peter Molyneux, editor & publisher of the Texas Weekly, is worried because the 1940 census, still incomplete, is almost certain to show the smallest gain in Texas' population of any 10-year period since 1850. On the basis of the preliminary count for 253 counties Texas' increase between 1930 and 1940 is about 10 per cent, compared with 40 and 50 per cent gains a generation ago, and 24.9 per cent in the 1930 census. Says Mr. Molyneux:

"During the past 10 years immigration (to Texas) has stopped altogether. This doesn't mean that nobody has moved to Texas since 1930, but it does mean that quite as many people, or even more, moved away. That's the significant thing about the results of the census of 1940. Because that's something that has never happened before in Texas. . . .

"This is unhealthy for a region like Texas, with its density of population not exceeding 25 to the square mile."

Analyzing the cause for this sudden "slow-down" in the growth of Texas, which since the stabilization of California has been the No. 1 promotion state of America, Mr. Molyneux says:

"The chief factor in this situation, of course, has been the sharp decline in the production of cotton in Texas. . . . The decline of cotton-growing in Texas has been due to nothing within the borders of Texas. It has been due to the progressive destruction of markets for American cotton outside of Texas and outside of the United States, but the effects of this decline are to be seen all around us in Texas, and they are reflected in the census figures. . . .

"In view of the defendant attitude of so many who presume to speak for Texas agriculture, it seems important to us to assert that whenever we get back on the job of developing Texas, the full and efficient utilization of our cotton lands must be among our chief objectives."

4 Arkansas Girls on First Trip to New Orleans

ABOARD THE SOUTHERN BELLE—Four Arkansas girls were among the 15 beauty queens who were en route to New Orleans Friday night on the initial run of the Kansas City Southern-Louisiana and Arkansas new streamlined aluminum train, The Southern Belle.

They were: the Misses Ruth Schilling of Texarkana, Catherine Edwards of Mena, Barbara Martin of De Queen, and Mary Gordon Richardson of Fort Smith. They will attend the dedication exercises for the train Saturday morning.

One of the 15 girls will be selected Miss Southern Belle to typify the characteristics of the train. The winner will accompany the train from New Orleans to Kansas City on a six-day exhibition tour, beginning Monday. Each girl will christen the train with a bottle of water from her home town.

The train left Kansas City at 9 a. m. and stopped only at points where contestants had been selected. It will arrive in New Orleans at 7 a. m.

Railroad officials aboard included three native Arkansians. C. P. Couch, president of the K. C. S. L. & A. Lines, a native of Magnolia; Guy B. Wood, vice president in charge of traffic, a native of Hot Springs; and Johnson O. Couch, assistant vice president, formerly of Pine Bluff.

More than 50 newspaper men from towns along the route, and many other guests, including officials of the Aluminum Company of America and the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company, which built the train, are among the passengers.

College Students Are to Be Photographed at 5 p. m. Sunday

Students who plan to go away to college next month, whether they live in Hempstead, Nevada or Lafayette counties, are invited to be at Hope city hall at 5 o'clock this Sunday afternoon, August 25, when The Star will photograph them for its annual BACK TO SCHOOL EDITION.

For several years The Star has made this picture an annual event. It's free—the only purpose of calling the students together being to get a group picture for newspaper publication.

Cox Funeral Is Set for 2 p. m. Saturday

Sheriff Brad Bright to Ask for Speedy Trial of Slayer

Funeral services for Orville Cox, 22-year-old Falcon man who was brutally robbed and murdered near Bodeau late Thursday night will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at his home in Falcon.

A preliminary hearing for John Gulley, alias Jack Gulley, negro, confessed slayer of Cox, will probably be held next week, according to Brad Bright, Nevada county sheriff. Sheriff Bright said that he was making every effort possible to hold the trial early next week.

"I am trying to get in touch with Prosecuting Attorney Dick Huie to make arrangements as soon as possible. The quicker we get the trial over with the better," he concluded.

Story of Crime

Upon his arrest, Gulley denied the charge but later confessed, saying that he had called Cox to his house on Fox White's place near White's Chapel on the pretense of buying some groceries. The officer's report states that when Cox started to get the groceries, Gulley slugged him on the head, knocking him unconscious, and placed him in the flour bin of the truck. They say Gulley then got in the truck and drove about three miles before wrecking the car.

Sheriff Brad Bright, Deputy Sheriff R. L. Vandiver, and state officers were called to the scene of the accident at 7 o'clock Friday night and found two witnesses who saw the negro jump from the wrecked car and flee. The officers immediately took up the search and, just after daylight Saturday morning, found a crowbar, wrapped in a bloody sack, at Gulley's house, and other evidence showing that was where the crime took place.

Changed Clothes
Facts developed that Gulley had gone from his home through the woods to the house of his brother-in-law at Willisville where he had changed clothes. When arrested, he had in his possession some of the money he had taken from Cox. Officers said that Gulley and his wife had separated about three weeks ago and Gulley had been living alone. He is about 30 years old.

Cox was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Cox and was about 21 years of age. He died without regaining consciousness.

Farm Meet Is Well Attended

Delegates From 10 States Were Represented

The greatest meeting ever attended was the thought of Hempstead county Farm Bureau delegates who attended the Southern Training meeting at Biloxi, Mississippi this week.

Delegates were present from ten states and Puerto Rico for the purpose of studying national farm problems.

L. C. Sommerville, President of the Hempstead county Farm Bureau who headed the local delegation reports that the meeting did the local group and southern farmers more good than any meeting he had ever attended.

Others in attendance from Hempstead county were: C. E. Rosenbaum, Fulton, E. M. Osborn, Hopewell and Riley Lewellen, Shover Springs.

The men all report an excellent time as well as very worth-while meeting. One special recreational activity was a three hour cruise on the Gulf of Mexico for the delegates.

A county Farm Bureau picnic will be held in October at which time the delegates will tell all Hempstead county Farm Bureau families more of the convention.

Report on Ohio's Drama Loan Society

COLUMBUS, O. —(AP)—A play loan service maintained by the Ohio State university extension service has provided home talent drama to the folks on the farm since 1925.

Although at first opposed by publishers who thought that the groups might copy the plays and thus curtail revenue, opposition dropped when it was made a rule that the borrowed plays could not be copied.

Groups have 2,500 plays from which to choose a production. Six copies may be borrowed at a time and kept for two weeks.

Fair to Open With Parade

More Than 30 Firms Will Have Floats in Parade

The parade which will open the 1940 Hempstead County Free Fair will be one of its outstanding features. More than thirty firms have already promised to have floats in the parade and the committee is planning to have 4 bands, Hope, Prescott, Nashville and Texarkana.

Mrs. Leon Bundy, chairman of the parade committee will be glad to have any additional entries (horse back, other than floats). Call her at 138 after 5 p. m. Three prizes will be given, $2 for the most beautiful, $10 for the most educational and $5 for the most comical.

The parade will start at 2:30 p. m., Tuesday, Sept. 10, and will pass through the business section of Hope and march to the Fair Grounds.

Firms participating in the parade are: Cox Drug Co., Hope Hardware Company, McDowell, E. L. Archer, Rae Luck, Service Station, M. S. Bates, Andrew Stroud, Hope Furniture company, Mills, Music—Stover, Police Department, Fire Department, Scotts Stores, Hitt's Shoe Store, Hope Auto company.

Business Going Steady in Swiss Bakeries

BERNE, Switzerland —(AP)—One good way of stretching wheat supplies is to induce people to eat less bread and cakes.

One good way of getting people to eat less bread and cakes is to sell them only bread and cakes at least 24 hours old.

The Swiss Office for War Economy has issued such a decree to bakers and pastry-shops.

If the citizens' appetite still proves too healthy, then the age of bread and cakes before sale will be raised to 48 hours.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative.

1. When two girls are vacationing together and sharing a room is it enough for one of them to sign the hotel register, or should both names be signed?

2. Should they write Miss before their names?

3. Is it perfectly proper for them to talk to other guests and, if invited, join them on sight-seeing trips?

4. Is it thoughtful to telephone friends just before mealtime when you are passing through the town in which they live and want to telephone to say "Hello"?

5. Is it better to telephone friends when you are driving through their town or stop by to see them without telephoning?

What would you do if—
You are a woman and a friend you have not seen in several years telephones she is stopping for a few days at a hotel in your city—
(a) Feel you must ask her to visit you instead of staying at the hotel whether it is convenient or not?
(b) Feel under no obligation to ask her to stay with you, but do entertain her in some way?

Answers
1. Both names should be signed.
2. Yes. This is one of the very few times when it is proper to write Miss in front of one's name.
3. Certainly.
4. No. Unless you are prepared to say you have already eaten.
5. Telephone first.

O'Dwyer Freed After Search for Clues

Physician Finds Him Rational But Still Distraught

TEXARKANA — R. J. O'Dwyer, Jr., was freed late Friday night after a state psychiatrist found him rational and officers had questioned him for two hours in search of more clues to the murder July 24 of his wife.

The scene was at the Miller county courthouse where O'Dwyer had been returned late Friday afternoon from Hope.

Prosecuting Attorney Dick Huie of Arkadelphia dismissed the questioning as being merely routine, the result of a hope that something unnoticed might turn up in a summary exploration of the murder.

Dr. R. E. Roland, superintendent of the state hospital at Little Rock, made the psychiatric examination, Miller county health officer.

Roland said that his superficial examination showed O'Dwyer to be rational, although still distraught. Dr. Middleton agreed.

At the close of the investigation, Sheriff W. E. Davis admitted that no ground had been gained towards solution of the crime.

O'Dwyer appeared worn from his period of custody, which began late Tuesday. He was confined at Hope Wednesday, Thursday and part of Friday. The psychiatric examination was originally set for Friday afternoon in Hope but was postponed, according to Huie.

His whereabouts was not made public until Friday. Members of his family had been alarmed by his absence but said they were resigned to police procedure necessary to the investigation.

Huie was assisted by City Attorney Alex Sanderson, acting in the absence of Dennis Williams, assistant prosecuting attorney.

Willkie Would Have New Post

Secretary of Aeronautics Needed He Says

NEW YORK —(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie advocated Saturday that a secretary of aeronautics be added to the president's cabinet because, he said, that branch of military service is most important and should not be subordinated.

"Emphasis in developing of military strength should be on the branch that today is the most important," he said. "My impression is that in our air construction and training of pilots and mechanics we are hopelessly unprepared. If England had trained an airforce equal to that of Germany she would not be facing the present crisis."

Hopkins Quits Commerce Post

Roosevelt to Appoint Jesse Jones in His Place

WASHINGTON —(AP)—President Roosevelt Saturday accepted the resignation of Harry L. Hopkins as Secretary of Commerce and announced that he would offer the post to Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator.

Hopkins wrote the President that he was quitting to recover his health. He has been suffering a stomach ailment for the past two years.

C of C Elects New Officials

Anderson and Haynes to Serve on Board

The secretary, in reporting the organization meetings of the directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce made two mistakes. He pointed to state that Roy Anderson was appointed chairman of the Agricultural Committee and that Henry Haynes was elected treasurer.

Mr. Anderson has been for years interested in agriculture. He is on the county agricultural committee in charge of extension work in this county, was very active in establishing and maintaining Soil Conservation Service, and was one of those responsible for the location of the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station in Hempstead county.

The agricultural committee is most important in this chamber of commerce as Hope is primarily an agricultural town, and the selection of Mr. Anderson to this committee is most fortunate.

The secretary regrets these two mistakes in reporting the meeting to The Star.

Star Election Party to Be Held Tuesday Night, Aug. 27

Complete returns, local and state, on the Democratic run-off primary Tuesday, August 27, will be projected on a screen in front of The Star building, South Walnut street, Tuesday night.

Ray Allen of the Saenger-Rialto theaters will again handle the projection work, and a crowd equal to the first Election Party, August 13, is expected.

Hempstead county precinct officials are urged to report their box direct to the newspaper office immediately after the count is completed. Phone Hope 768 Collect.

No returns will be given out to the public by telephone, as the lines will be in constant use gathering reports from the precincts.

The Associated Press election wire will report state returns throughout the Election Party Tuesday night.

An ELECTION EXTRA will be issued by the newspaper, as on August 13, coming off the press before midnight for sale in the city. The ELECTION EXTRA will be served to mail subscribers in place of the regular mail edition Wednesday morning.

Conference on Concessions Is Failure

Both Countries Cancel Army Leaves, Call Up Reserves

BUDAPEST —(AP)—Hungary took new defensive measure Saturday calling up her army reservists overnight as the conference with Rumania over Transylvania ended in failure.

The number called was not disclosed. Rumania called up reserve officers Friday night and cancelled army leaves.

Conference Is Failure

TURNU-SEVERIN —(AP)—A Hungarian-Rumanian conference over Transylvania collapsed Saturday with 7 of 2 delegations admitting failure to find common grounds for continuing negotiations and prepared to depart for Bucharest and Budapest.

Collapse of the Axis-inspired attempt to arrive at a friendly settlement of Hungary's claim to Transylvania, which Rumania has held since the world war came after the Rumanians failed to give a satisfactory reply to the Hungarian demand for some concrete territorial concessions.

English Coast Shelled

LONDON —(AP)—Air raids sirens shelled twice through London and along the English coast Saturday as Germany attacked with bombs and shells.

Germany's big guns, setup on the coast of France, hurled high explosives across the 22 mile stretch of the English channel and warplanes scattered loads up and down the Thames estuary. British naval guns, setup on shore, replied to the bombardment and fighters engaged in fierce battles overhead.

London's anti-aircraft guns threw up a ring of breaking steel around the capital as the population ran for cover.

Twenty-one bombers attacked the town of Ramsgate alone and near the Thames Estuary causing much damage to the shopping center but few casualties.

Italy Loses Sub

ROME —(AP)—Italian planes bombed the naval base of Alexandria, Egyptian airfield and British concentrations Friday the aerial high command announced Saturday in a communique acknowledging the loss of an Italian submarine.

The announcement said that a submarine was sunk by a British torpedo-carrying plane in the gulf of Bomba, Libya.

Roumania to Fight

BUCHAREST —(AP)—All Roumanian reserve officers and non-commissioned officers were called up unexpectedly Friday night and all army leaves cancelled indefinitely.

This was interpreted as a bad augury for the Turnu Severin conference scheduled to reconvene Saturday for discussion of Hungarian demands upon Roumania for return of the Transylvanian area.

(The German radio reported from Bucharest that the Roumanian Crown Council had met with King Carol under circumstances suggesting the cabinet would be re-formed with the ouster of four ministers.)

The new cabinet was expected to include two of the highest church dignitaries amongst the Transylvanian Roumanians—Orthodox Bishop Belan and Greek Catholic Archbishop Nieucescu.

General Mihail, the radio said, probably would succeed General Tzenesous as chief of the General Staff.

Conference to Collapse

TURNU SEVERIN, Roumania —(AP)—Observers Friday night predicted likely collapse of the Roumanian-Hungarian territorial conference. Discussion of Hungary's claim, embracing Transylvania, is to be resumed Saturday, but it was believed an "agreement to disagree" would be reached.

Budapest reports were that Hungary would reject the Roumanian proposal for complete transfer of populations but was willing to use the plan as a basis for discussion. A Hungarian source expressed doubt that Germany and Italy would try any immediate arbitration of the problem, which he called potential dynamite. He predicted the axis partners would merely seek to prevent an armed clash between Roumania and Hungary.

Argentina to Retain Ortiz as President

Congress Factions Unite to Reject Executive's Resignation

BUENOS AIRES —(AP)—All factions in congress decided Friday to reject the resignation of ailing President Ortiz, easing a crisis over an army land purchase which threatened to split the country. A vote of confidence by 186 of the possible 190 votes in Saturday's meeting was forecast. Liberals and Conservatives were in agreement on a major issue for the first time in 10 years.

Deputy Kills Self

Victor Guillot, Radical (Liberal) party deputy accused of profiting in the purchase, committed suicide Friday. Guillot, whose expulsion from the chamber had been asked by a congressional investigating committee, was found in his study with a bullet wound in his head. On his desk calendar, he had written: "May God forgive me."

Political observers believed the Ortiz offer to resign, submitted Thursday night, had served its purpose in rebuking officials who were implicated in the transaction and had won additional support for his attempt to pacify all factions.

The accusation of graft assumed serious proportions because of similar charges that preceded over-throw of a Liberal government by a revolution in 1930, the last one Argentina had. It was the first revolution in this rich cattle and grain growing country since the turn of the century, and resulted in bitterness that has not disappeared entirely.

Businessman President

Conservatives ruled the country after the revolution until 1938 when Ortiz first businessman president in Argentina's history who was on good terms with important factions in both camps, was inaugurated on a Conservative coalition ticket.

Ortiz made good progress in inducing the Conservative cattle barons and Liberal politicians from the big cities to get on better terms until he became ill in June, and handed over the presidency temporarily to Vice President Castillo. Castillo, to the Liberals, represented the strong arm methods which they had accused the Conservatives of using when in power between 1930 and 1938.

The Liberals had accused the Conservatives of running the country in the interests of the large land owners, and the Conservatives had made accusations of graft and waste in previous Liberal administrations.

Large Pumpkin Vine Reported

C. Hipp Near Hope Has Vine With 60 Pumpkins

Charlie Hipp of near Hope reported here Friday that he had a large pumpkin vine growing at his home that had 60 pumpkins on it from 30 pounds down.

The vine has grown up into a plum tree nearby and 8 or 10 large pumpkins are hanging from the tree.

The vine covers about one fifth of a block and if straightened out would easily stretch between 150 and 200 feet.

The Most Important Initials

Washington is full of alphabetical agencies, HOLCs and RFCs and CCCs. But the most important initials of all are not yet known to the country.

They are NDAC.

That's the National Defense Advisory Commission. Right now it is the most important of them all.

The men and women grouped in this body, which is charged with co-ordination of the civilian end of the defense effort, are giving a living demonstration, day by day, that it is possible to serve their country without regard for partisanship. They are not all New Dealers; they are not all even Democrats. But faced with a national emergency, they are giving a daily demonstration of service beyond party and beyond personal interests.

It is beyond true that nothing done in a political government can be 100 percent devoid of politics. Thus the Defense Commissioners have had their share of problems. Senators and congressmen have been plaguing them for war industries plants in their particular constituencies.

There is a limit to the amount of this pressure that ought to be applied. It was all right in the old days for congressmen to work for an appropriation, to dredge Goose Creek.

That was pork, but it didn't matter then. It matters terribly now.

New defense plants ought to be located wherever the best thought and study of army and defense commission authorities decide they ought to go. It is the nation that calls now, and nobody cares a rap whether Goose Creek gets its slice of pork or not. There is every sign that the commission has worked with only the national view in mind. But it should not be plagued with political requests.

People of the caliber of William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Steinitz, Sidney Hillman, Leon Henderson, Ralph Budd, Chester Davis, and Harriet Elliott can give the country devoted and non-political service if they are let alone. They have already shown that at a congressional personal sacrifice, they are willing to do so.

Quite regardless of the fact that a Democratic administration is in power, they should be accorded co-operation by anyone on whom they call, of whatever party or group. By the same token, the Democratic party ought to claim no credit for what the commission accomplishes.

A giant, preparedness effort like the one we now face must have one

Are You Superstitious About Sports?
By RUTH FARRAR
NEA Special Correspondent

The whole athletic world is so shot through with superstition and civilized voodooism that to spend an hour with a group of athletes before a big game is worse than living alone for a week in a haunted house.

But it's a paradise to a man like Dr. B. A. Cartwright of the University of Oklahoma, who collects pet beliefs and queer quacks of athletes and others. Here are some samples from his findings on the "superstitious" world of sports.

A hockey player will go straight through the ceiling if he catches anyone putting a hat on his bed. There is no quicker way one can lose his job than by laying his hat for a fraction of a second on the manager's bed.

Eight out of ten hockey players put their left skate on first for luck. Neither love nor money could induce grid stars to wear any piece of equipment into a game without first

Mothers Can't Build a Peaceful World
By RUTH MILLETT
Women may someday get so disgusted with the way men run the world that they will pitch in and do a better job of it themselves.
That day—if it ever comes—is far in the future. But Jan Struther, the English writer, is convinced that if the people of the world are ever to become international-minded, the feeling will have to start with the mothers of the world.
Jan Struther is the creator of one of London's most popular characters—the sophisticated, aware Mrs. Miniver. Mrs. Miniver was introduced to Londoners through newspaper sketches and Americans recently met her in the pages of a book called simply "Mrs. Miniver."
Though the war has scattered Jan Struther's own family (her husband is in the British army, her "sturdy" sixteen-year-old son working on the land and she has brought the two younger children to America for safekeeping), Mrs. Struther can think beyond the war and even beyond the war's end.
She knows that the important thing now is for England to win this war—"for the good of the next generation of German boys and girls, as well as for our own," but she likes to think beyond that, to the time when the people of the world will learn to understand each other.
Her reason for believing that this understanding could best start with mothers is this: "It just seems to me that the mothers of all lands, because they are closer to the home and to the family (which are very much the same everywhere), and because they have a common bond, are more capable of understanding each other than are statesmen."
"I am convinced that international-mindedness cannot be imposed from above, that international-mindedness cannot be imposed from below—grow in the minds of the ordinary people."
Children Become "Ambassadors"
Mrs. Struther, for all her belief that women must foster this international understanding and tolerance if it is ever to flourish, thinks the time for that is in the future. For now she says, "The war must

SERIAL STORY MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHN

Copyright, 1946, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY, Lieutenant O'Leary, riding the group by telling them, "Riggs is not the murderer, but someone in the room is. One of the main things for a moment there is confusion. O'Leary resumes his story, in interrupted by Barbour, who starts across the room. Suddenly, Barbour slumps to the floor.

CHAPTER XII

FOR the first few seconds after George Barbour slumped to the floor, no one moved. Then, suddenly, pandemonium broke loose.
Lieutenant O'Leary had darted around the desk. He walked swiftly over to the bookcase where he had been probing that afternoon and, after a moment's inspection, he turned and went to the side of the man lying on the floor. When he looked up, his jaws were clenched in determined lines.

"He's dead," he said, as it felt to him.
The lieutenant turned to Carroll, still clenching his service revolver. "Get the medical examiner, Sergeant."
It was three-quarters of an hour later when the guests and servants were asked to come back to the den. The fresh splootch on the sand-colored rug was superimposed over the stain that had remained after the removal of Saylor's body the night before.
Rhoda Waters was on the verge of hysteria. "For heaven's sake, please . . . I can't stand it. Two murders in two nights. Last night Saylor and now Barbour."
"Martin Saylor was murdered," O'Leary said. "But George Barbour committed suicide."
Dale Appleby dropped back into his chair. He sat very still. "You mean, Lieutenant, that Barbour was responsible for my stepfather's death?"
O'Leary nodded. "Yes. George Barbour was the man we wanted for murder. He realized that to-night, so he had an ace in the hole—death—and he played it."

Dale said calmly, "Go on."
"We had nothing to go on at first, except the fact that a man was dead and that someone had killed him. But this afternoon, we made some visits. We didn't learn a great deal at Barbour's place, but there was one thing that impressed us. The sergeant will agree. When you walk toward a door in Barbour's house, it opens automatically—before you touch it."
LIEUTENANT O'LEARY had been sitting perched on the corner of Saylor's desk. Now he slid off slowly and walked over to the bookcase just east of the fireplace. One of the bulky volumes had been taken from the shelf to their homes after a visit with their mother, Mrs. Marvin Jones.

Those present included, Miss Sara Jane Murphy, Miss Mary Joe Dickinson, Miss Margaret Bush, Miss Rose Myra Dossett, Miss Martha Ann Alexander, Miss Mary Bailey, Miss Martha Bailey, Miss Billy Irene Jones, Miss Marian Crutchfield, Miss Frances Holman, Miss Ella Joe Edmondson, Miss Maxine Boyette, Miss June Duke, and Miss Norma June Duke, Miss Betty June Monts, Miss Marjorie O'Neal, Miss Juanita Gordon and Miss Bowden.

Personal Mention

Miss Betty June Monts has as house guests this week, Miss Evelyn Steed of Conway and Miss Dorothy Dale Walbet of Little Rock. Both of the young ladies are former residents of the city.
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rae of Springfield, Louisiana are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mills.
Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Middlebrooks of Norman, Oklahoma, Mrs. H. A. Thomas of Enid, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Jack Johnson and little son "Jackie" of Oak Grove, Mo. have returned leave a gap, and the book was lying on top of some of the others nearby.

"This book," O'Leary said, picking up the misplaced volume, "was out of order and not quite in line this afternoon. I learned that Saylor was an extremely orderly man and it worried me a little. Then suddenly I remembered Barbour's automatic doors . . . and I had the answer."
O'Leary went on. "Barbour hated Saylor . . . had for some years. Ordinarily he was too mild a man to take any drastic action. Instead, he found his own way of justice. He simply began dipping into the joint funds and helped himself."
"This was satisfactory until Saylor found out. You all knew Saylor pretty well. He was mean and hard. He was going to have his revenge on Barbour, and it was going to be cruel revenge."
"Barbour recognized a crisis. He conceived a way of getting rid of his partner."
O'Leary began removing more books from the shelf and piling them up on the floor. When he had cleared a space of several feet, he motioned those in the room to group around him. With a little effort, he pulled a panel in the rear of the bookcase and it slid open. Pointing directly at him was a revolver.

"Barbour spent a good many nights here. He said so himself. He must have had an idea that behind that panel was a chamber large enough to accommodate some of his equipment. He probably got the idea from Saylor's wall safe."
"So when everybody in the house was asleep, Barbour rigged up his little machine. The only important job he did here was to remove the panel and hook up the device that would permit it to slide open and shut. He had probably taken careful measurements and done most of the work at home."
"The thing that undoubtedly required the most time here was placing the gun in precisely the position he wanted so that a single bullet would do its job quickly. The gun was hooked up with a photo-electric cell by means of a relay. The cell was also connected to a small electric motor which would start simultaneously with the shot and by means of a pulley arrangement would shut the door of the panel."
Appleby interrupted. "But if he used a photo-electric cell, there would have to be a light source somewhere on the other side of the room, wouldn't there?"
"Yes, but not the ordinary kind. That was where Barbour was ingenious. Actually, the light source was installed right next to the gun and hidden with it. When the panel was open, the light was reflected in the tall mirror directly across the room and made contact with the cell.

"So last night, probably as he and Saylor were leaving the room, he made the simple adjustment. On some pretext or other, he must have gone over to the bookcase, removed the book and jacked open the panel. That was all there was to it. Saylor returned to this room alone. He walked straight to his desk. Barbour had known almost the precise spot where he'd cross the beam. Take a look at the rug, and you can see that a path has been worn in a direct line between the desk and the far doorway. When Saylor crossed the beam, the gun went off."
"When all of you came in to find the body, Barbour went over to the window. Remember? He had a chance to slip the book back—but not quite carefully enough. And he also opened the book to make it seem that the shot had been fired from the outside."

NO one spoke. There was nothing to say. After awhile, Hazel Leighton rose and said in a queer voice, "I'll go now, Lieutenant, if I may."
"I'll take you," Winslow Marshall offered.
"Go ahead," O'Leary said. "It's all over. There'll be no more murders."
Slowly the servants shuffled out. The uniformed officers led Riggs away. Only Rhoda Waters and Dale Appleby remained in the room with O'Leary and Carroll.

"We'll take you home, young lady," O'Leary invited. "You'd better get a good night's sleep. You'll want to be fresh as a daisy when you get that license tomorrow."
Carroll yawned shamelessly as he drove toward O'Leary's home after they had dropped Rhoda Waters at her apartment.
"One thing bothers me, Chief," he said. "You examined that gun this afternoon, didn't you?"
O'Leary was leaning back on the front seat, his head perched horizontally on top of the upholstery. "Sure," he said.
"Well, then, you know damn well there was another bullet there."
"Justice," said Lieutenant O'Leary irrelevantly, as he stared at the stars. "Sometimes there's a strange turn. And sometimes you've got to give it a little push."

TVA Does Its Part in National Defense Program

While Bruce Catton vacations, members of NEA Service's Washington bureau punch-hit for him.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Tennessee Valley Authority is slated to play a big part in the nation's defense program.

So says David "E. Lillenthal, vice chairman of the government's greatest venture in production of electricity by water power.

During the last war the famous and much-contested, and two vast and costly plants were erected. The aim was to manufacture nitrates for the army's needed high explosives. Actually, the plants were never used. They were completed too late and were obsolete from an economic standpoint. It was cheaper, after the war, to produce nitrates from other sources.

Plant No. 1 has not been used since then. Plant No. 2 — itself a vast structure — was converted in 1934 by TVA for the production of phosphates for fertilizer.

Will Furnish Power For Aluminums

"That plant," says Lillenthal, "will fit in our defense program. Food is a vital part of defense, and phosphates will keep the soil fertile. But in addition, part of the plant can be converted to the making of nitrates—especially if we add to it. By new processes we can economically produce ammonium nitrates for high explosives. Part of the phosphate could also be used by the army's chemical warfare section."

Congress recently appropriated $25,000,000 for TVA. This is a supplement to the regular funds, and is designed to make a start on a $65,000,000 additional power program. A storage dam and hydro-electric power plant will be started at once on the Holston river, near Jefferson City, Tenn. It is hoped to have the plant in operation by the fall of 1942. It will create 90,000 kilowatts of electrical energy.

The TVA is in a race with time because of the defense program's urgency. A week after the President signed the appropriation bill, all contracts for the two plants were let. Main purpose is to furnish aluminum for army and navy airplanes. An army fighter plane takes some five tons of aluminum. The electric power it takes to obtain that much from bauxite ore and put it into shape for use would supply 200 average families with electric power for a year.

If aluminum production is not vastly increased, it is estimated the army's aircraft program will face a deficit of 62,000,000 pounds of the metal by 1942.

Two Other Plants Customers

The biggest aluminum producing and rolling plant in the world is at Alcoa, Tenn., the property of the Aluminum Company of America. This firm is increasing its plant and prospective output. The vastly more electric power needed will be furnished largely by the new TVA plants. Besides, the company is erecting some of its own power plants.

Two other big customers for their future additional electric power," Lillenthal says, "will be the Vultee Aircraft plant at Nashville and a new $20,000,000 duPont powder mill near Memphis."

"The Vultee people recently took over the Stinson concern in Nashville and propose to increase it tenfold, ultimately employing 8000 men.

In some parts of India, Hindus are being converted to Christianity at the rate of 15,000 a month.

God first and be in Sunday School Sunday. Do not just send the children; come and bring them.

Our pastor will preach at 11:00 a. m. The text for the morning hour will be, "Now Then Do It."

B. T. C. will meet at 7:15 all members are urged to be present and on time.

the power plants going, there may be many other factories in the TVA area doing work for defense. I say this because it has been found that about one-third of the commodities classified as strategic and critical by the Munitions Board are available in commercial quantities right in the Tennessee Valley.

They find Nashville a strategic point. The haul of aluminum from Alcoa to Nashville is a short one and they will have the benefit of this TVA electric power.

THE REAL ISSUE
in the Campaign for COUNTY TREASURER

The office of County Treasurer is not an executive office. The County Treasurer performs only such acts as bookkeeping and clerical work.

THEREFORE THE ONLY ISSUE IS WITH RESPECT TO THE QUALIFICATIONS OF THE CANDIDATES TO FILL THE OFFICE.

Even those who oppose Mrs. Gladine B. Morris admit that she is the better qualified for the office and admit that she is deserving of the support of everyone.

Therefore we ask the Democratic voters of Hempstead County, in determining whom they will support for this office, to consider the question solely on the basis of merit and not on matters foreign to the main issue.

IF YOU WERE EMPLOYING A PERSON TO DO BOOKKEEPING AND CLERICAL WORK, YOU WOULD EMPLOY MRS. GLADINE B. MORRIS. THAT IS THE ISSUE. LET'S GIVE HER A HANDSOME MAJORITY ON AUGUST 27.

Vote For
Mrs. Gladine B. Morris
for County Treasurer
(This ad paid for by friends of Mrs. Morris)
Paid Political Adv.

To the Democratic Voters of Hempstead County

I am asking you to go to the polls next Tuesday (August 27th), and vote for me, BECAUSE —

First:
I am an American citizen. I belong to no organization, but my CHURCH. However, I do now and here solicit the vote and support of each and every voter of Hempstead County.

Secondly:
I am no stranger to you. For thirty-six years I have dwelt in your midst. You watched me teach your sons and daughters in Sunday School when a girl of sixteen summers. You knew me when I taught your children in the public schools. You have seen me live the life of a widow for many years. You are conversant with my training and experience in office work for the past seventeen years. You have seen me rear and educate my daughter alone.

YOU KNOW MY RECORD IS CLEAN AND ABOVE REPROACH.
You have seen me conduct a clean campaign without false propaganda, and run for the office of County Treasurer on my ability and qualifications.

Every Voter in Hempstead County knows that I am trained and experienced for the position to which I aspire; and that the County Treasurer's office is one that requires Office Training, Ability and Experience.
I shall deeply appreciate your vote and influence in my behalf.

Respectfully submitted,
(MRS.) GLADINE B. MORRIS

Travelers and Barons Split

Each Wins Game in Their Final Series Play

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Birmingham and Little Rock began their final series Friday night by splitting a double-header but the Travelers were decidedly the more impressive in victory. After the Barons had squeezed through 7 to 2, in the first engagement, the Travelers won, 15 to 4, in the second.

Zack Schuessler and Charlie Bauers were shelled throughout the second game, the hit total reaching 22. Bauers went to the mound in the fourth with eight hits charged against Zack. He found the Travelers in no mood to coast and was tagged hard in virtually every remaining inning.

COUNTY AGENT

Oliver L. Adams

Dr. W. L. Davis, Bureau of Animal Industry, working through the state veterinarian's office at Little Rock was in Hempstead county today relative to hog cholera control measures.

It appears by the excessive number of office calls relative to hog cholera that much loss is being taken at the present time by many of our farmers. Vaccinating with sufficient cholera serum and good quality virus, is the only recommended measure of control.

When pigs are vaccinated small, the cost is not excessive. It is expensive to vaccinate mature hogs. If sows are properly vaccinated their pigs are generally immune until weaning age. At weaning age, it is easy to vaccinate the pigs so that they are generally protected for life. The best way to vaccinate hogs is on a community basis.

Now is the time to plant early Southern giant bur clover for a seed plot. It is thought by the county agricultural committee that most farmers should have a seed plot of bur clover.

The farm program allows $1.50 per acre for the seeding on soil-building allowances. Family labor is all that is necessary in harvesting for home planted bur clover. It is one of the only crops that labor only is required.

In planting, five bushels of good barn-yard manure should be mixed with bushel of seed planted.

Addition of new soil-building practices which farmers may adopt and extension of the grant-of-aid phase of the program were recommended for inclusion in the 1941 AAA program at the recent national AAA conference in Washington, according to information received from the state AAA office.

The conference recommended that

Hikers' Cabins to Be Built on 2,000-Mile Appalachian Trail

ROANOKE, Va.—(P)—Lean-tos and cabins to accommodate hiking enthusiasts soon will be strung the length of the 2,000-mile Appalachian Trail from Maine to Georgia under a plan announced here.

Myron H. Avery of New York, chairman of the Appalachian Trail conference, while here to inspect some relocated links in the trail, said the lean-tos would be constructed about one day's walk apart between the northern terminus at Katahdin, Me., and the southern terminus at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

A smaller number of shelters—cabins with cooking and sleeping equipment—will be constructed. Some already have been built in southern Pennsylvania, Maryland, and northern Virginia.

The conference is an affiliation of about 30 recreational groups with an aggregate membership of 10,000. It hopes to complete its shelter and lean-to chain to make the trail comparable to those in Europe. Members of affiliated groups keep the trail marked with signs and white tree blazes.

One difficulty has been that bears have torn down wooden signs in the Great Smoky mountains in North Carolina, but plans are to remedy this by using metal signs.

Valuable Sun Glasses
Probably the most expensive sun glasses ever made are a $2000 pair in New York City, which are set with small diamonds around the rims and two-carat square-cut diamonds in the center.

Flames Leap High
A California scientist states that flames leap outward from the surface of the sun at the rate of 20,000 miles a minute, and sometimes reach a height of 500,000 miles.

and unfit for filming. Besides, we have just finished a picture along the same lines. . . . And then there's the anecdote about a writer who submitted a screen play which was so bad that the studio rewrote it before sending it back.

Dan Ameche will have the top role in "Western Union," but he won't be shown inventing the telegraph. He'll be a renegade. . . . Eugene Meredith, who was to have appeared on Broadway in "Young Man With a Horn," which was shelved, now toots a trumpet, along with Fred Astaire, in "Second Chorus." Neither actor can play the instrument. . . . There'll be a new Dietrich in pictures within a year. Marlene's daughter, Maria, is taking dramatic lessons, and is dieting, too.

Just Too Bad

Bumbershoot Business Hits The Chutes

BALTIMORE —(P)—The umbrella business is on the wane. Modern living is responsible, says a Baltimore manufacturer.

Baltimore once was a major umbrella-making town, but demand has fallen off now.

Even Neville Chamberlain and appeasement didn't help.

In former days, the manufacturer said, umbrellas and parasols were not only fashionable, but necessities because of poor transportation. Telephones, automobiles, and better transportation changed all that. And women aren't afraid of sun tan these days.

Dangerous Bread
Venezuelan Indians dry and grate the cassava root to make flour for bread. Their bread is poisonous until baked, since the juice of the cassava root contains a deadly acid, which lingers in the dough until heated.

Public Enemy — Doubled
Wild hemp has become a double public enemy. It causes untold suffering among hay fever victims, and is used in the manufacture of marijuana cigarettes.

Dined With Hats On
During the 17th century, French etiquette permitted a man to sit at table with his hat on. He was only required to remove it when his health was toasted.

WHAT DO YOU THINK NOW ?

School records reveal that just one member of Spring Hill school board recommended my opponent, just one R. A. Johnson. Members of Board Are:

Emmet Powell Earl Cato
Elmer Tarpley Silas McDowell

R. A. Johnson

I will be able to cooperate and have the cooperation of.

Senator Hattie Caraway
Senator John E. Miller
Governor-elect Homer M. Adkins
Congressman-elect Orren Harris

Don't you think with such cooperation that I will be able to render a greater service to my people than the one who has fought and antagonized all of the above named officials.

My opponent urges you to investigate his record.

HERE IT IS:

He sold his vote to the liquor interest in his previous campaign then betrayed their confidence. That is why house bill number 4 put him on the spot. See Journal page 682. He voted dry on house bill no. 4.

He voted wet on house bill No. 241 which would legalize and authorize state-owned and controlled liquor which bill was sponsored by Z. M. McCarroll. See Journal page 1056.

He voted against old age pension bill No. 666, which would have authorized funds for child welfare, unemployed and old aged people. See Journal page 1241 and 42.

He voted for act 378-1939 which makes it impossible for a poor man to legally go fishing. See Act 378-1939.

He voted for Bill No. 4, extra-ordinary session, which would have authorized one man to refund $137,000,000 in bonds behind closed doors.

I want all of the voters of Hempstead County regardless of whom they voted for in the previous election to vote for me

I know my opponent admits he is better than any one else, all of which we do not agree.

I will hold conferences with the school boards and superintendents of the county to determine their wishes before the convening of the legislature.

You may be assured if you send me to legislature I will not be on the spot and you will send one who loves his country and his people
